"A Cup of Tea and She," a good picture at the Theatorium to-day. The mother of a young man appeals to his sweetheart, an artist's model, to give him up. She consents and so conducts herself at a Bohemian dance, that he becomes disgusted and forsakes her. Five years later she is a scrubwoman and finds herself in his business office, where he has her portrait concealed on wall, behind cabinet doors. Her emotion over the discovery is well shown, but she keeps her secret and he passes her by without recognition.

Our feature picture at the Comique to-day and to-morrow, "A Tale of the West," an excellent Western story of novel idea thrillingly told and at the same time consistently constructed. A young cowboy receives an appealing letter from his mother for a sum of money to pay on mortgage on her little home which she is about to lose. He repeatedly fails to borrow from his acquaintance, half crazed by despair, he steals a number of horses and sells them, knowing he will be hung, but ready to pay the penalty to send his mother the money she needs; then an exciting pursuit on horseback. He gives himself up, his captors, who prepare to hang him. But his sweetheart on horseback set out in hot chase after the avengers, reaches them in the nick of time, explains situation, touching the hearts of the cowboys, who release prisoner, take up collection to replace required amount.

The young son of Louis Landault who resides on the East hill drove down to the Catholic church yesterday morning and hitched his horse near McLeod's blacksmith shop on Seminary street. After the service was out he went to get his horse and found it gone. He notified the police and they called at the livery stables in the city, but no one had seen the team. Late in the afternoon H. F. Cutler, who had heard about the missing team, met the team being driven by two boys on the Plainfield road about three miles from the city. The two boys were Louis Ferari and Louis Gold, both about ten years of age. It is said that the Ferari boy took the team from the place where it was hitched and while driving away saw the Gold boy and invited him to ride. The boys drove the team for several hours around over the hills in the vicinity of where they were found. When Mr. Cutler stopped the team the Gold boy jumped out and scrambled away. Evidently desiring that the horse should be in good trim for a drive, the Ferari boy had fed the horse with the feed which had been brought in the wagon for that purpose. No arrests have been made, but it is said that Mr. Landault is looking for damages.

C. R. Lynham's delivery team, driven by William Beattie, became frightened on South Main street at four o'clock Saturday afternoon and ran away. The driver was unable to hold the horse and when the wagon struck the tracks of the Barre railroad opposite Trow & Holden's shop the wheels caught in the tracks and threw Mr. Beattie out. He struck the ground on his face and was cut and bruised badly. He was taken into the machine shop and was carried to his home on James street after it was found that he had not been injured beyond cuts on his face. The horse ran down the railroad tracks until it struck a car demolishing the wagon and harness. The horse was caught there and was not injured.

Why RALSTON SHOES are non-wrinkling

As you have probably noticed, most shoes have a tendency to wrinkle and "bunch up" across the toes after the shoes have been worn a few times. This is the fault of the lasting (the process of pulling and stretching the leather over the wooden last.)

The RALSTON method has remedied this fault. Ralston vamps are first crimped (see illustration) then lasted. There are no bunches, no wrinkles, because every part of the vamp fits the last perfectly without straining the leather at any point. This adds to the wear of the shoe. It also explains the reason why Ralston retain their smart appearance until worn out.

There are other unusual features of RALSTON SHOE construction which will appeal to you. Come in and look over our new styles.
